The Missing Tefillin

It's not much fun travelling away from home because of your job. Mr Cohen was preparing for yet another stay in a rather boring hotel and wished he could stay at home with his family. But he had no choice, it was part of his job, and here he was. Before his last meeting before flying back home, Mr Cohen packed his suitcase so he'd be ready to leave as soon as he was finished. He did leave a few things on his bed, but they wouldn't take much time to slip into his case. His last meeting ended, and he went straight to his room to finish packing and be on his way home.

And then he realised that something was missing. His Tefillin! Oh no! The most important thing he owned! He checked, he re-checked but no! No Tefillin. Where on earth were they. How could he leave without his Tefillin? He had to put them on every day when he davened. What was he going to do now?

He thought and thought and suddenly he knew where they were! The cleaner must have come into his room and thrown them away! A non-Jewish cleaner wouldn't have known how holy and important his Tefillin were! He checked his bin, but it was empty. He had left it full of all his rubbish. Could the bin men have taken them not realising what they were? He raced out of his room, down the hallway and stopped the first maid he saw. "Where is the rubbish?" The maid looked puzzled. Why was this strange man looking for the hotels rubbish? But Ok! Some people just are strange! "It's probably been taken down to the basement and put into one of the big bins ready to be taken away!"

"Taken away! Oh no! Taken where?" Mr Cohen didn't stop to hear her answer but instead raced down the stairs to the basement. No time to lose! He just hoped against hope that they hadn't been taken away yet!

The basement wasn't very nice. Dark corridors, dark rooms. He opened every door trying to find someone who could help him. At last he opened the door to a room where some cleaning people were drinking coffee.

"Did any of you clean my room?" The men looked at him strangely. Guests didn't usually get into a panic about their rubbish. Mostly they didn't even think about what happened to their old rubbish.

But Mr Cohen told them the number of his room and one man said that it was him. He had cleaned his room that morning.

"Did you see two little black boxes with leather straps attached to them?"

"Now I think of it, I remember them lying on the bed. I just thought they were rubbish and threw them away."

"My holy Tefillin! That I use every morning to daven with! Oh no! Oh no! "Where does the rubbish go after it's been collected? Has it gone yet?"

"It's probably gone by now. The bin men come every morning and put the rubbish into their dustcart and take it away! We have mountains of rubbish every day! Once it's gone there's no chance that it can be found. We have at least 200 black bags full of rubbish every day. You'll never ever find it if it's already been taken away!"

Have the Tefillin gone forever? More next week

Have a wonderful week
